Tempers flare with talk of low-income housing

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Anger has been building in the Meadowdale subdivision in recent years as residents watch the affect of construction equipment on their deteriorating streets.

But the last straw for these residents came last week when they heard talk of low-income development coming into their subdivision, a neighborhood of $70,000 to $90,000 homes.

As they packed Romulus City Council chambers Monday night, most residents said they do not blame the city for their problems, but rather the developer of their neighborhood, Byrne Benson.

What they did want from the city is a way to stop Benson, who reportedly advertised a plan to build houses in the Meadowdale subdivision starting at $49,000.

Residents said Benson offered to approve mortgages on such homes for people who meet qualifications for a Michigan State Housing Development Authority loan, a program for those with low-to-moderate incomes.

"When Mr. Benson started building homes there, everyone was glad the subdivision was going to expand," said a Leroy Street resident. "This gentleman seems to think he can come in and do anything he feels like. Somebody better look at it or there's going to be 1,000 homes for sale in that subdivision."

"The emotional issue is low-income housing," said Michael Michon of Burning Tree Street. "Those folks who have invested money...their homes are 30 to 50 percent more valuable than the housing going up."

More than one hour was spent as a steady stream of residents approached the podium to express similar concerns to council.

Several people asked councilmembers to consider a new zoning ordinance establishing a minimum square footage for housing. Such a measure may hinder the development of low-income houses, which tend to be small, residents said.

"You cannot pass an ordinance that deliberately discriminates," said Mayor Beverly McAnally.

McAnally and all of the city councilmembers at the meeting told residents they had not heard of Benson's plans, but as long as he obeys existing zoning and building ordinances, he can legally construct low-cost housing.

"You may not want to hear this, but Mr. Benson has rights, too," McAnally said.

Most of the residents were not satisfied.

"People are entitled to affordable housing, but we don't want the developer to have total control," one man said.

Ultimately, city officials agreed to report back to residents in the form of a special meeting at 6 p.m. July 9.

"I think this is the first time we've heard about that problem. The administration has heard your concerns loud and clear," said Councilmember Noah Bergeron.

Councilman threatens to sue city

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

A city practice of paying Police Chief Fred Dansby money in lieu of medical benefits is wrong, said City Councilmember Noah Bergeron, and he said he may sue the city to stop it.

Currently, Dansby receives approximately $2,380 every six months, the amount Romulus would have invested in Blue Cross hospitalization coverage. Retired from the city of Westland, Dansby was already insured when he came to Romulus.

Bergeron said the extra payments to Dansby amount to gifts, an unnecessary expenditure of taxpayers' money.

The city has reimbursed employees for waived benefits in the past.

When the city police department was formed, three of the officers hired were retired from the Michigan State Police—Donald Flood, Leonard Rukala and Kenneth Kraus. Each of the officers paid approximately $30 a month for their continued state police insurance policy.

Bergeron said the officers told Romulus officials they would waive the city benefit plan if the city reimbursed them for their monthly premiums.

Because that arrangement saved Romulus money, Bergeron said, city officials approved it.

Lillie and Jim Chamberlain (above) have made collecting hammered aluminum a hobby, covering the shelves and tables of their garage with the antique pieces. Popular near the turn of the century, hammered aluminum has been used for everything from dessert trays to toothbrush holders. ANP photo by Werner Siocum/Staff photographer.

Aluminum is an elegant antique

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

When Lillie Chamberlain tells people she collects hammered aluminum, the initial reaction is often a polite pause.

Chamberlain then explains the aluminum is in the form of fruit bowls, trays and water pitchers. From the turn of the century through the 1940s, hammered aluminum was a popular medium for these items, often shaped into intricate floral patterns.

Since 1972, Chamberlain has been covering shelves and tables in her Romulus home with her collectables, found at garage sales and flea markets.

"It's fun, and I don't pay much for it."

When she and her husband Jim, shop for these items, they usually find them marked way below value, Chamberlain said.

Now, her collection contains approximately 225 items. Twenty-three of these pieces are on display for the next month at the Romulus Public Library. They were placed there after Chamberlain agreed to loan them to the Romulus Historical Society.

Chamberlain also volunteered to donate a piece for permanent display at the Romulus Historical Museum.

When these antiques were new, many of them were considered luxury items. In fact, Chamberlain said, aluminum was considered a precious metal up to 100 years ago.

"The people who sell them say 'This belonged to my mother or grandmother' or 'This was a wedding gift 40 years ago,'" she said.

City undecided on landfill contract

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus officials have not made a final decision about a proposed landfill contract with the city of Riverview, but they did agree Monday night to form a committee to consider the issue.

All communities using the Riverview landfill were presented with an ultimatum earlier this year. To continue using the landfill, they must agree to use a recycling facility planned for the downriver community.

The recycling center ties in with an expansion project for the landfill. Riverview officials say the larger facility will have a 20- to 25-year capacity.

Further, with the recycling center, Riverview would be exempt from the requirements of the upcoming Wayne County Solid Waste plan, a detailed program designed to drastically reduce waste flow.

But Romulus officials have not decided if participating in this program will benefit their city.

During a study session with Riverview officials May 30 they were told funding for the recycling center will come largely from communities who sign the new landfill contract.

If the plant cost comes to $3 million, Romulus would be responsible for an estimated $24,500 per year, Riverview officials said.

A $6 million plant would mean a $49,000 annual bill for Romulus.

In addition, processing costs are expected to range from $16 to $23 per ton of material for a total as great as $25,000 per year.

All communities using the Riverview landfill were presented with an ultimatum earlier this year. To continue using the landfill, they must agree to use a recycling facility planned for the downriver community.

— Romulus Officials

To meet a July 1 deadline imposed by Riverview, Mayor Beverly McAnally Monday night presented city councilmembers with a proposed resolution as a sign of good faith toward a contract decision.

Unanimously approved, the resolution states Romulus is interested in the proposed agreement and will enter it if several conditions are met.

• The contract language must be approved by both cities.

• Romulus must still evaluate the economic feasibility of the agreement and find it favorable.

• A committee must be formed to study the ramifications of the agreement, seek out alternatives and report to city council.

McAnally asked for a councilmember to volunteer as a committee representative. Ellis Pennington and Jimmie Raspberry agreed to participate.

McAnally is also anxious to enlist the help of residents for this committee. Those interested in participating can contact Jeffrey Martell at 942-7545.

Students sample government life

Three Romulus girls joined high school students from throughout Michigan earlier this month for a week-long, hands-on lesson in government.

Selected to attend the 50th Annual American Legion Auxiliary Girls State program were seniors Angela Hopewell, Kimberly Lewis and Kiantee Rupert.

Five hundred and forty-six girls attended the program this year at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant.

The 1990 Girls State Program is designed as a practical experience in problems of self-government.

"The purpose of the program is to emphasize the importance of government in modern life, to stimulate a deep and lasting interest in government and to enlarge the students' understanding of the governmental process," said Romulus high school counselor John Domas.

Upon their arrival at Girls State, each girl is assigned to a mythical political party—Nationalist or Federalist—and to one of seven counties with a choice of three cities each.

"Citizens" nominate and elect various city, county and state officials. They learn the functions of each office—its powers and limitations, including the state supreme court, the legislature and other divisions of government.

The press association, lobbyist and interest groups are also popular activities.

Although camp was more work than recreation, the girls

Drug-money use is investigated

In the wake of a critical report by the auditor general's office of the possible misappropriations of seized drug money funds, a Wayne County commissioner is asking for an investigation of "all funds seized during drug raids."

"I believe it is imperative that a probe be conducted to assure that we are not violating the Forfeiture Act," said Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard Saturday. "We don't need a scandal like that in Detroit."

Under the Forfeiture Act, all cash and assets used in drug transactions by drug dealers may be forfeited to the arresting agency, if the defendants are convicted.

Beard was also referring to the alleged misappropriations of drug money seized by Detroit narcotics agents. Federal authorities are investigating the possible theft and mis-use of funds in Detroit. They have arrested a former deputy chief, Kenneth Weiner, who is being questioned in the Detroit case.

Beard said the auditor general's report shows materials purchased with seized drug funds and intended for the construction of a Drug Enforcement Unit office are being used by the Wayne County Building Department for other construction projects.

"The use of these funds for purposes other than drug enforcement is illegal, and that transferring these funds to other county departments circumvents the county's budget process," Beard insisted.

The U.S. Justice Department had asked the auditor general for documentation on all expenditures of drug funds from the county. According to a county report, since 1984, the federal government has transferred more than $2.2 million in seized drug money and property to Wayne County.

In the auditor general's report, it states that the Wayne County Building Division apparently had "borrowed" materials from the Drug Enforcement building project to use on other construction jobs.

In her report to the Justice Department, county Auditor General Ramona E. Henderson reportedly stated that building materials were purchased more than a year ago for construction of a Drug Enforcement Unit Office, however, no construction has begun.

Henderson also stated that more materials than are needed for the job have been purchased, including an additional cooling unit and pieces of sheet metal.

A Wayne County sheriff's spokesperson said that the sheriff's department has little control of the expenditure of funds once it is seized from suspected drug dealers.

"We seize the money, but do not have control of it," said Nancy Mouradian, information director.

said they enjoyed the experience.

"It was fun," Lewis said. "I made a lot of friends, and I learned a lot about state and local government."

As a county clerk, Lewis took minutes at all county meetings acting as registrar of deeds, signing a steady flow of legal documents.

"It wasn't anything like I expected. It was a lot of hard work," she said.

Hopewell served on a city council as a Nationalist.

"They kept giving us problems, and we had to solve them."

For starters, Hopewell said, councilmembers were presented with a budget to balance. Her imaginary city was $30,000 "in the hole."

Providing $180 scholarships for program participants this year were the Romulus Progressive Club, the Romulus Rotary Club and the Kiwanis Club of Romulus.

Also active in helping the girls were Mae Jackson, William Knight and Al Wilkerson, Romulus high school counselors; Gerald Nault, Progressive and Kiwanis clubs; Michael Prybyla, Rotary club; Michael Kernohan, Dwayne Harper, Dennis Stoh and Bill Bradford, Romulus high school teachers and Bonnie Bossidis.

Downtown development area to expand

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

An initial step toward a series of proposed improvements for the downtown area was taken Monday night when Romulus City Councilmembers approved the first reading of an ordinance to expand the Downtown Development Authority.

Community Development Director Dennis Oakes said the expansion would include 42 acres of the Metro Airport Center industrial/office park next to city hall.

With this step in place, Metro Airport Center developer Edward Schulak can later request DDA financial assistance with the construction of public improvements within his industrial park.

During a public hearing Monday night Schulak told councilmembers he initially intends to pursue assistance with a partially completed roadway running through his development site. The road will loop through the area and connect Wayne and Goddard roads.

If the DDA and city council approve a financing plan, Schulak would still finance the cost of the road, but he would be reimbursed by tax revenue created by new development within the DDA.

"In a lot of ways this is a win-win situation," Schulak told councilmembers.

Schulak said financial assistance would accelerate construction in the Metro Airport Center, lead to an expanded tax base for the city once expired and enable him to competitively lure quality tenants to Romulus.

With one year of construction nearly completed on the Metro Airport Center, the facility currently has two buildings ready for occupancy. These buildings are considered part of the first phase of development. Some tenants have already been located, Schulak said.

The roadway would be part of phase II.

Buildings within the Metro Airport Center can be used for professional office space or air cargo storage/distribution facilities.

During this public hearing, council heard a presentation from Joel Carr, assistant superintendent of Romulus Community Schools.

The school district will soon go out-of-formula, losing nearly all state financial support, Carr said. Once it is dependent upon city tax dollars, a new financial agreement through the DDA could cost the schools, he explained.

Carr did not criticize potential plans to assist the airport center but questioned whether how long such an agreement would last.

Oakes said a term for a DDA agreement has not been determined. It could span up to 15 or 20 years. He said district officials and school board members are welcome at DDA meetings, where the plan will be discussed throughout the summer.

"We could come back to council with a draft plan by the end of August," Oakes said.

The unanimous action by councilmembers during the regular meeting does not approve any financial agreement, Oakes added. It simply allows for expansion of the DDA after a second and final reading.

Local man to face charges in break-in

A 33-year-old Romulus man has been charged in the recent break-in of a local business.

Marty Joe Emmon was arraigned June 15 at the 34th District Court in Romulus.

A preliminary examination has been scheduled for June 26.

Emmon was remanded to Wayne County jail in lieu of a $5,000 cash bond.

Last week, police officials received an alarm call to a business on the 7000 block of Merri-man. A window at the store was broken and a rock was found in the store vestibule.

Although an employee called to the scene could not determine if a break-in occurred, the owner noticed cash and liquor had been taken the next morning.

Because Emmon was charged with a break-in at the same business in February 1989, Romulus police officials decided to interview him for this case.

The defendant reportedly confessed to police he was responsible for the second crime.

Taken from the store was more than $100 in cash and $50 worth of liquor.

Man charged in assault

A Romulus man will go to trial charged with four counts of second-degree criminal sexual conduct.

George Wysocki, 47, was bound over to Recorder's Court June 13 during his preliminary examination at the 34th District Court in Romulus.

Bond, which Wysocki posted June 7, was continued at $10,000 cash.

The defendant is scheduled for arraignment June 27 at the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice.

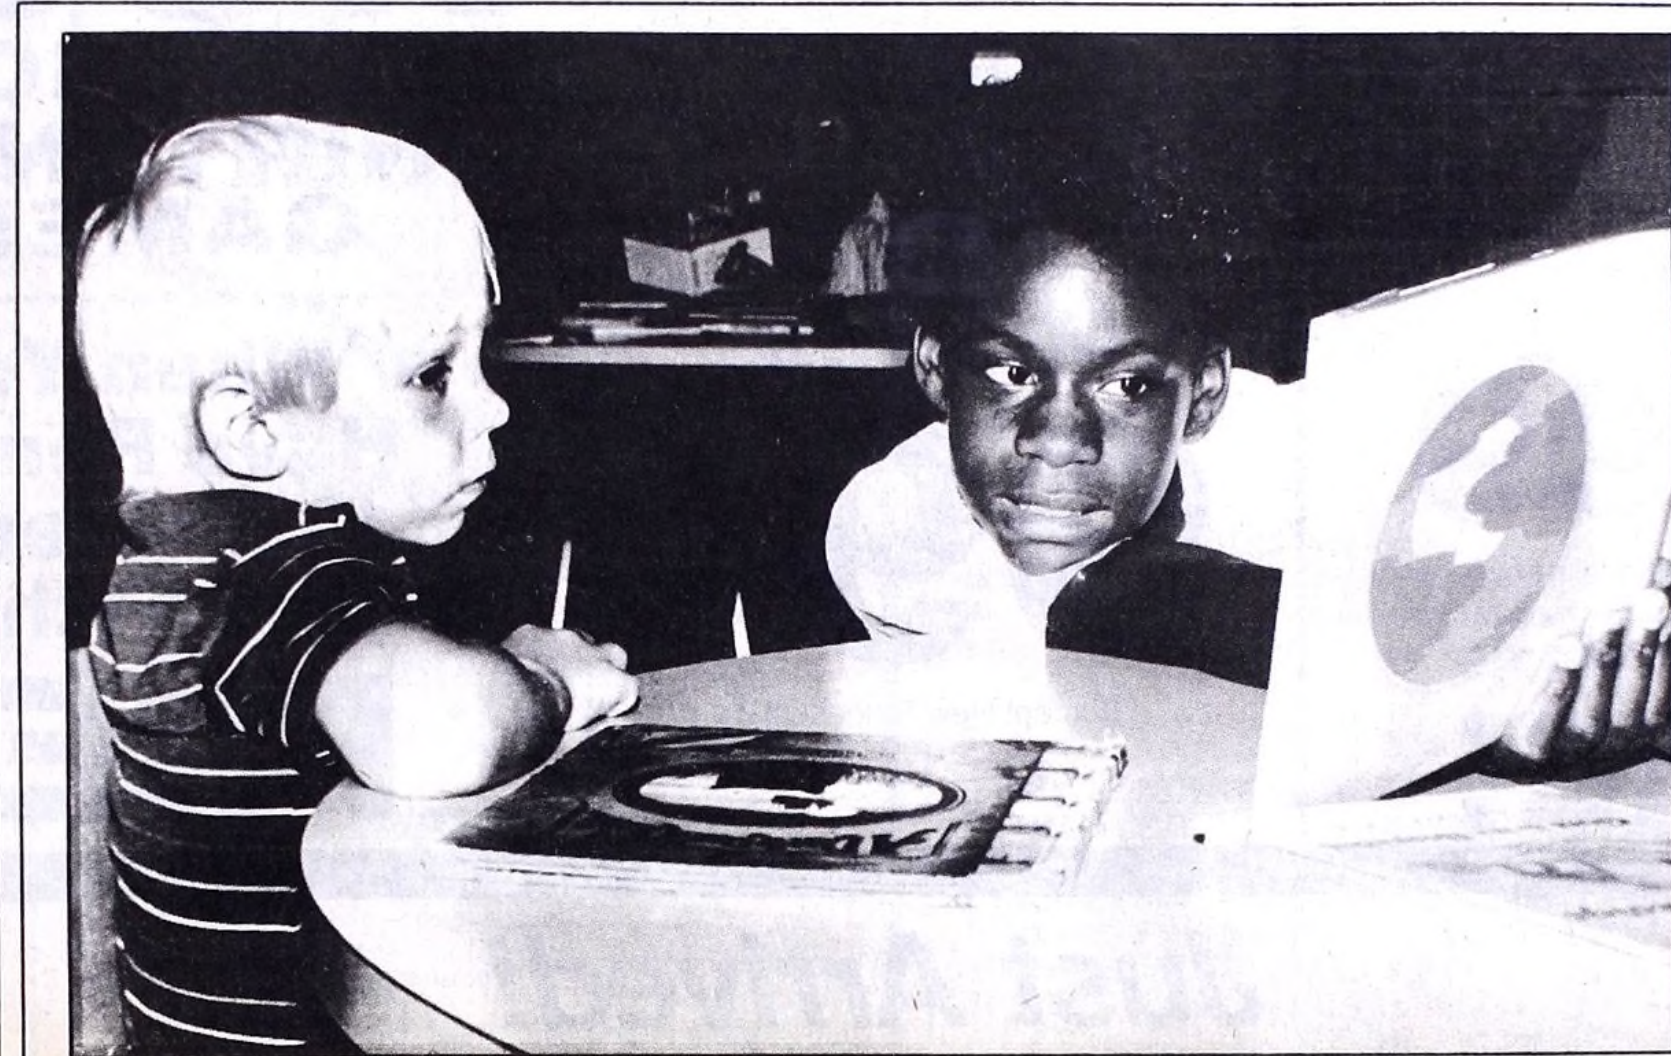

Romulus police officials said Wysocki was arrested June 7 after several months of investigation.

Police based the investigation on complaints from a local 7-year-old boy who came to the police with his parents in April.

The minor is reportedly an acquaintance of the defendant, police said.

Picture perfect

Storybooks with big, colorful pictures are considered a must for a new reading program at Romulus Public Library. Marcel Mario Dixon, 18, was sentenced to life in prison Monday for the criminal sexual assault of an infant girl.

Recorder's Court Judge Michael Talbot also sentenced the Romulus man to five to 20 years for violating his probation on drug charges.

Talbot based his decision upon testimony from Dixon's preliminary examination. Trial proceedings for Dixon concluded after less than one day May 31 when the defendant pleaded no contest to criminal sexual assault charges.

Romulus police officials said the baby in this case has undergone treatment for extensive injuries.

The baby's 18-year-old mother contacted police in late October, one day after she asked Dixon to care for her 15-month-old child while she was at work.

According to police reports, the mother left for work at 3 p.m. Oct. 25 and returned at approximately 11 p.m.

The woman said she noticed her child was injured when she changed her diaper the following morning.

Dixon was charged with the assault in early November and has remained in Wayne County.

In addition, Bergeron said, city union negotiations led to a similar policy for employees with spouses already receiving insurance coverage. Spouses could waive city coverage, and Romulus would pay them half of that cost, up to $1,500 per year.

Coverage normally would cost the city approximately $4,500 per year, Bergeron said.

"That was a good deal for them (employees) and for the city," he said. "But Dansby wants it all. What economic value is that to the city? What economic benefit is it to the taxpayers?...That's taking $5,000 (per year) of taxpayers' dollars and blowing it."

Bergeron also said this practice is discriminatory. Romulus employs other retired people receiving medical benefits from another source. As far as he knows, he said, Dansby is the only employee receiving money in lieu of these benefits.

But Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally said there is nothing out of the ordinary about the arrangement.

"It isn't a new practice. POAM (Police Officer Association of Michigan) officers do get money in lieu of hospital benefits," McAnally said.

Also, the mayor said, city insurance rates are often adjusted based on the number of people being covered. As those numbers increase, premiums increase. Therefore, she said, the city saves money simply because Dansby waived coverage.

"The city attorney feels what I'm doing is defensible," McAnally said, pointing out she has received a legal opinion stating the arrangement is not against the city ordinance.

Birthday party honors 90-year-old resident

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Florence Atkinson had the surprise of her life June 19 when her friends and family gathered at the Romulus Senior Center to celebrate her 90th birthday.

The staff at the senior center spent weeks planning a surprise party for the longtime resident, and Atkinson admitted their "sneakiness" worked.

"They fooled me so completely, and that's hard to do. I almost died," she said. "I never saw so many happy people in my life."

When Atkinson left her Senior Towers apartment, she thought she was going out to lunch with her daughter, Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally.

"I wondered why we were going north," Atkinson recalled. After driving around the north and west borders of town, the pair mysteriously ended up at the senior center. McAnally suggested lunch there.

"We went in that door and they surprised me," Atkinson said, adding she hadn't been in the center for four years. "They haven't forgotten me."

Composting efforts boosted

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
Belleville City Editor

A bill, which would ban yard clippings from the solid-waste stream, could boost composting efforts in the state by 1994.

Rep. James Kosteva told members of the Conference of Western Wayne that House Bill 4872 is awaiting Senate approval, and could be passed into law when the state Legislature begins its fall agenda.

The bill would ban landfills or municipal solid waste incinerators from accepting lawn-yard clippings after Jan. 1, 1994. The bill also calls for a ban on clippings generated from county-, municipal- or state-owned properties after Jan. 1, 1992.

Yard clippings are defined in the bill as leaves, grass clippings and garden debris. Shrubbery, brush or tree trimmings, less than four feet in length and two inches in diameter, also would be banned from landfills and incinerators.

Stumps, agricultural wastes, animal wastes, roots, garbage and sewer sludge would not be included in the materials to be converted to compost humus, according to the bill.

Kosteva noted that the ban will bring two benefits — a 20-percent reduction of the materials placed in landfills, thereby prolonging the service life of the landfill, and also a savings in disposal costs for the yard materials.

"All municipalities are paying $30 to $35 per ton for disposal of waste materials. The cost to collect yard clippings is $15 per ton, or a cost avoidance of $15 to $20 per ton," Kosteva said. "In addition, the compost can be returned to residents or used for parks, cemeteries and public grounds. Some of the compost material can be sold."

Kosteva said the proposed legislation has not had any organized opposition, and seems to be supported by most of the state.

"There has been some reluctance by some northern Michigan communities to establish the program, but I don't think this will have a great impact on those areas. This is mostly an urban and suburban issue," Kosteva said.

Summer job options appear to be limited

By BARBARA GOFFMAN
ANP Special Writer

Summer employment opportunities for high school students this year are limited, according to an informal poll of 20 local businesses and worker-placement centers.

Many businesses have a minimum employee age limit of 18. Only a few businesses will accept employees aged 16.

"The only openings we have now are as cashiers, which must be 18 or older because we sell wine and beer," said Mark Hickson, the manager of Arbor Drugs in Belleville.

Hickson said his store does hire younger students, 16- or 17-year-olds, as stock help, but, currently, there are no positions available.

Domino's pizza in Wayne will hire students 16 or older to answer phones; the pay is $3.35. Only students 18 or older can deliver food due to insurance requirements. Drivers need to have their own transportation, insurance and a clean driving record. A driver can make up to $11 per hour, depending upon the tips received, said Assistant Manager Don Venier.

Students interested in cooking have opportunities available at fast-food restaurants, such as Burger King in Belleville. Teens aged 16 can work full or part time. No experience or skills are necessary. Pay ranges from $3.80 to $4.50 per hour depending upon the worker's skill and age.

The Pine Creek County Club in Belleville too needs two cooks on a part-time basis. The pay begins at $5 per hour. Experience is helpful but not necessary.

A few businesses that hire specifically for summer have already filled their employee quota. The Westland Parks and Recreation Department, for instance, hired its lifeguards and park workers during the spring.

Students do still have opportunities for summer work available to them if they are willing to work at golf courses, in factories or at fast-food places, said

Tom Arbanas, an employment specialist at Growth Works Inc., a job referral service located in Plymouth.

His company sent out a mass mailing to high school students in the spring about summer job options, but has received little response. He said the positions available are full or part time, with a pay scale ranging from minimum wage to $6 per hour for some clerical jobs. For the latter positions, some skills, such as typing or word processing, are required.

Program to halt youth offenders

By PATRICIA BROWN
ANP Staff Writer

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara has announced plans to start a youth intervention program as a way to combat the violence and drug addictions caused when children become involved in selling drugs.

"We want to reach those kids who are on the brink. Those who might just be entering into the drug-dealing world," said Irma Clark, spokesman for McNamara.

The idea for the program came about when the county received an additional $23 million from a half-mill tax increase. Two million dollars were set aside for this program, according to Clark.

The program was designed to fight crime from three different avenues. The first one was to build a new jail. The second was to expand the current Andrew Beard correctional facility.

The third part of the plan focuses on young people who have not been involved in violent crimes, but are already showing signs of becoming involved with the sale of illegal drugs.

"We're primarily targeting the 16-year-olds and under-age category," Clark said.

The county hopes to get the children while they are still young and teach them some skills, she said.

"Incarcerating these kids really isn't the answer, because we found that they end up at Jackson years down the road," Clark said.

The program was put together after county officials conducted a study to find out if county residents wanted more jails, or if they would rather see a program implemented that would help the children change their lives.

"More people wanted to see a program that would turn these kids around," Clark said.

The annual amount of dollars spent on housing juvenile offenders has doubled in the past four years, according to Clark.

It costs the county approximately $15,000 each year to house one juvenile offender, Clark said.

All of these points and more added to officials deciding to implement an intervention program.

If the program is successful, officials hope it can steer some young drug dealers away from the deadly profession of dealing and into a program that will help them learn some skills to make an honest living and live an honest life.

Wetlands are issue for concern

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

As development continues to spread throughout Wayne County and surrounding areas, the spotlight is shifting somewhat from the benefits of growth to the damaging loss of wetlands.

The value of these sites, low-lying wet or swampy areas, has received growing recognition in the last five or 10 years.

During his 1988 campaign, President George Bush identified this attitude and promised to preserve all of the existing wetlands in the nation, no matter how small.

The cause picked up further momentum this year as Earth Day activities urged citizens to take better care of the environment.

"People are finally realizing we're destroying inhabited wetlands all over the world," said Jack Smiley, a Livonia resident who closely follows environmental issues.

Wetlands do serve as homes to numerous forms of plant life, trees and wildlife, said Joe Luellen of the Soil Conservation Service for Wayne and Washtenaw counties.

Equally important, he said, water lying over land serves to recharge groundwater, making its way to wells, streams and creeks.

As the flow continues, this water goes to River Rouge, the Detroit River and eventually, Lake Erie.

Some of the plant life found near wetlands has been identified as endangered, Luellen continued.

"When you remove the water you remove the plant population."

Government bodies are aware of these factors, Luellen said. Wetland policies exist all the way from the township to the national level.

Wetlands received governmental protection for the first time in 1977 when Congress wrote Section 404 of the Clean Water Act. With it, the Army Corps of Engineers has the authority to issue a permit for dredge or fill activities on wet areas.

In most cases, wetland permits require wetlands be reestablished - mitigated - near the original site.

On the local level, Luellen said, township or city governments can create ordinances prohibiting development in wetland areas. Sometimes, however, these measures result in property tax payments for parcels of land that can never be developed.

More common in Michigan is regulation of wetlands by the state Department of Natural Resources.

When the state designates a wetland area, Luellen said, the site usually spans more than three acres or has more than one owner.

The Michigan DNR received attention last month when it approved a permit for Wayne County to fill nearly 16 acres of wetlands to make way for a 1,500-foot runway extension at Detroit Wayne County Metropolitan Airport.

The application was unique because it called for wetland mitigation in another community.

Usually, wetland permits require the mitigated area be established near the development site. The wetland has a better chance of "survival" and the ratio of taxable land that can be developed remains the same within the affected town.

But Luellen said mitigation poses a risk in any situation. The formation of wetlands is a time-consuming process. Water collects over a low-lying surface, and tiny particles of earth accumulate to hold the water in.

At a new site, the particles may not be present. Instead of holding water six months, the new site may hold water for four. For some plants, the two-month difference could mean death.

County officials, meanwhile, say their plans for mitigation is a positive move. For every one acre of airport wetlands the county destroys, it will be responsible for one-and-a-half acres somewhere else.

County officials have also announced plans to construct a 1,000-acre wildlife preserve to accompany the new wetlands.

Wetlands on an airport site, they said, could pose a danger because of the wildlife they attract.

The county will eventually have to mitigate 400 to 500 acres of wetlands as plans for the extensive airport expansion move forward.

Smiley said the airport project is only one of many development projects crowding out wetlands. He contends these areas are facing attacks from several directions.

"We have a big problem that a lot of wetlands are being displaced by developers who never contact the DNR," he said.

Even developers who do go through the proper channels may receive lenient treatment because of short-staffed DNR offices, Smiley added.

Where has all the money gone?

A Wayne County commissioner is asking for a complete investigation of the Wayne County drug fund.

After the release of a critical auditor general's report detailing possible misappropriation of seized drug money, Commissioner Kay Beard publicly asked for a complete and thorough examination of the fund.

Under the Drug Forfeiture Act, all cash and assets used in drug transactions by drug dealers may be forfeited to the arresting agency, if the defendants are convicted. The money is then to be used in the fight against drugs.

In two recent cases, it has been revealed that money from the fund could have been misappropriated.

The first case involves the notorious Kenneth Weiner who is being investigated for the possible theft and misuse of funds.

In another more recent case, an auditor general's report indicates that money from the fund may have been used by the Wayne County Building Department for projects other than what was intended. The money had been earmarked for the construction of a Drug Enforcement Unit office.

The Forfeiture Act offers public officials a unique opportunity to fund their battle against crime using money other than that of the taxpayers.

Money and property illegally obtained by convicted drug dealers can be put to use fighting back.

The value and intent of the program, however, are destroyed when government officials either deliberately or by mistake use the funds for things other than what was intended.

The drug war continues. Officers on the street take two steps forward and then reel back again. It is a difficult war to fight.

The forfeiture funds help ease the burden.

A full investigation is warranted, and must proceed right away in order to fight the drug war with all resources available.

A good idea gone bad

They started out as a group of concerned business people asking city government to address their concerns. They have converted to a small group of frustrated individuals firing randomly at anything having to do with city government.

The group of business people who gathered several months ago to express some concerns to Wayne city councilmembers started out on the right foot. They had some grievances and they wanted the elected officials to address those concerns. Sounds good. In fact we supported their cause in an editorial.

We suggested that keeping the lines of communication open is a good idea. It still is.

What started as a productive group, has turned into a few people "shooting at anything that moves".

The Wayne Charter Committee does not represent the majority of Wayne residents. They do not even represent a fraction of the Wayne business community.

The Wayne Charter Committee is now a small group of individuals spouting off. They have a right to do so.

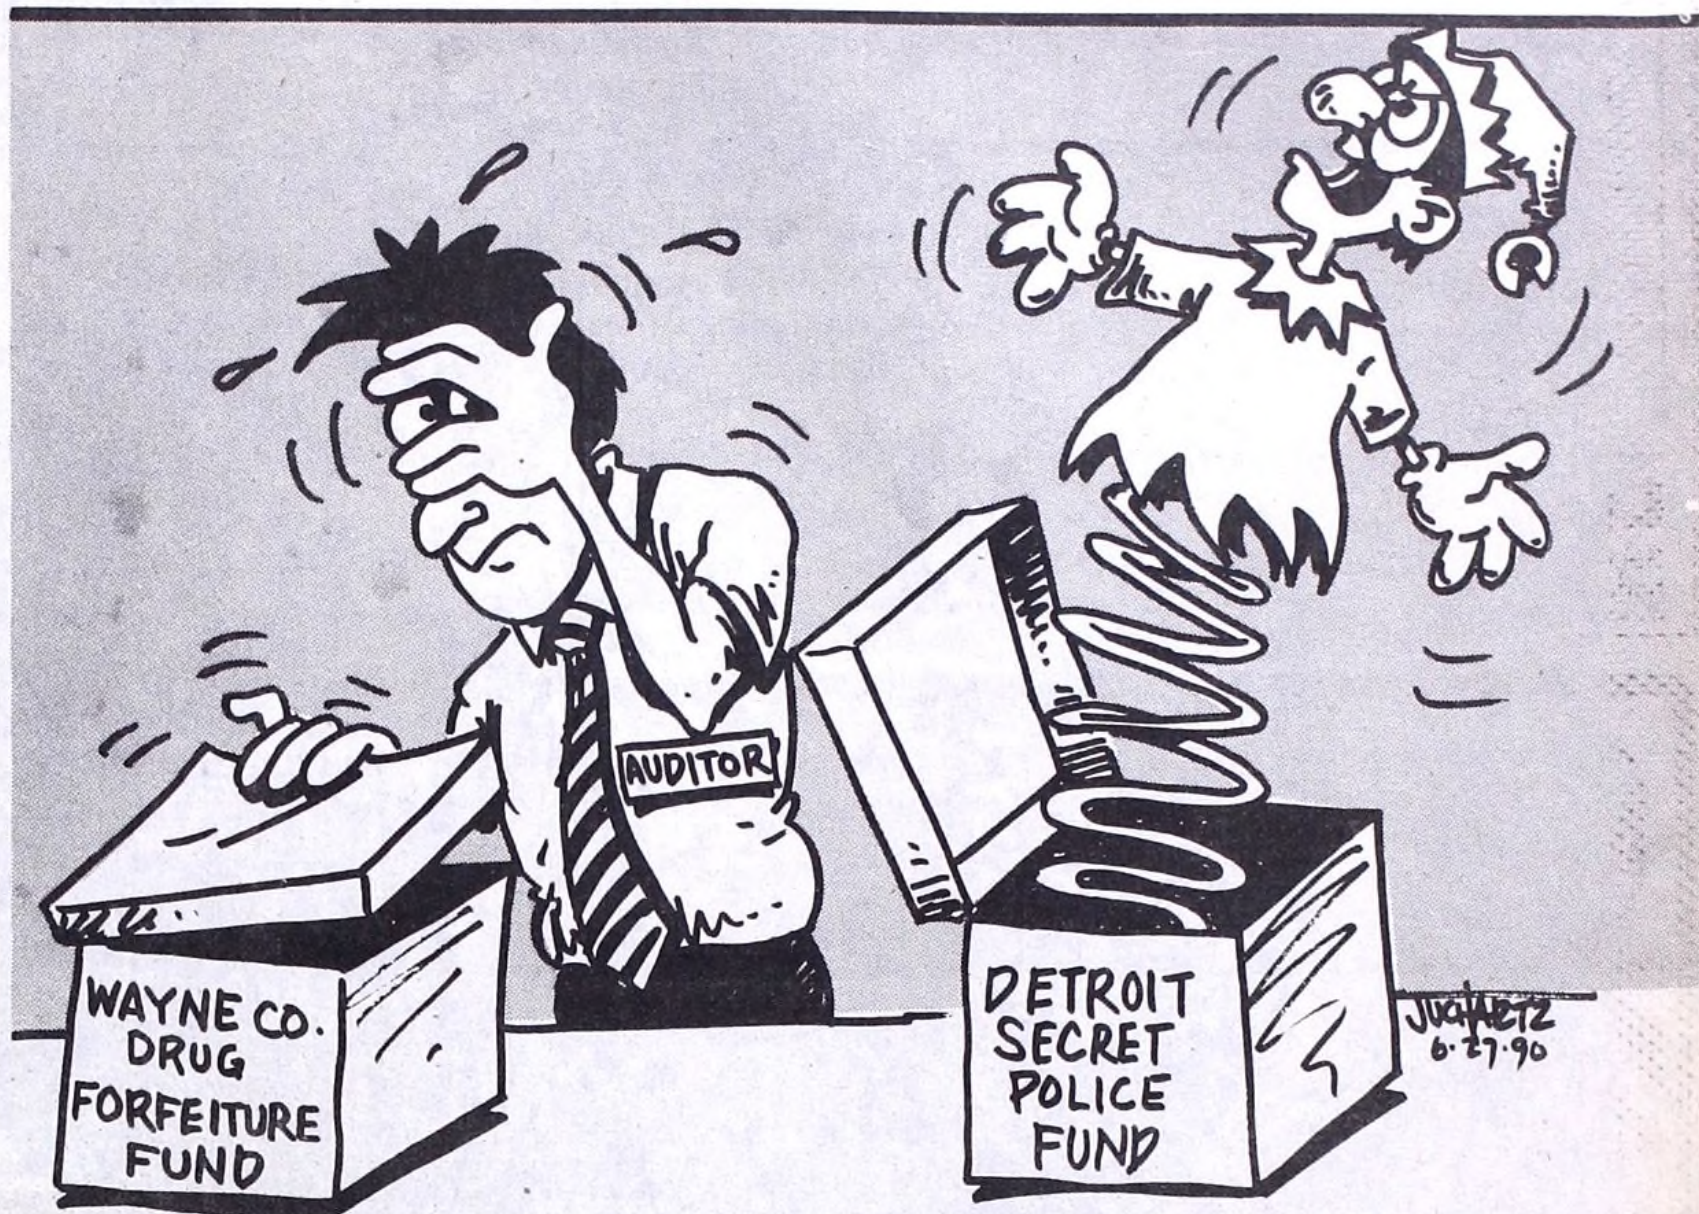

Launching a recall campaign and filing a lawsuit, however, are probably not the most productive means for making changes in government.

The Wayne Charter should be studied. Some improvements could, and should, probably be made.

In the process, however, the entire city government need not be poured down the drain.

Officials said they would discuss issues openly, now it is up to these few people to determine what they really want and what is best for the city.

In the meantime, don't drag the reputation of the city into the gutter.

"The city lacks enterprise"

As lifetime residents of the Wayne-Westland area, we are composing this letter as a means of expressing our concern and growing disappointment in the lack of development and enterprise in the City of Wayne.

Over the years we have observed the departure of many fine establishments, most of which we frequented with our parents when we were children and continued to patronize as young adults. We can no longer consider Wayne for most types of shopping or entertainment. When a new school year begins, parents must look to Westland, Canton, Novi or Dearborn to outfit their children. Our childhood trips to Gladstone's for shoes, Mulholland's for clothes and scout uniforms, and Lazar's for boy's and men's wear are nothing more than nostalgic reminiscing.

More than one Saturday afternoon consisted of a matinee at the State Wayne Theater followed by spending the rest of our allowance on lunch at Kresge's (the "Dimestore"), or goodies at Johnson's Bakery, all of which were in walking distance of each other.

There were places for buying special occasion gifts, such as Wayne Hobby or jewelry at Shifrin-Willens. One could buy a prom gown at Stuart's and rent the tuxedo next door at Art Allen's and pick up the flowers for the evening at Stein's Florist, which is the only establishment mentioned above that is still in operation today.

LETTERS

It saddens us a great deal to drive through downtown Wayne today and see very few reasons to stop. We applaud those storeowners who have managed to remain in Wayne and even make improvements and enlarge their places of business, such as Northside Hardware, Leo's Jewelry and Gifts, Wm. C. Frank Furniture, Jack's Sport Shop, and Wild Bill's Fun Center, to name a few.

We, along with our parents, children and neighbors still take pride in our city and would like to see growth and prosperity once again. However, at this point in time we see our beloved Wayne becoming a modern day ghost town, with no heritage to pass along.

Karen Prieskorn-Moore
Barbara J. Patton

"A throwaway existence"

We live in an age of disposables. There are disposable diapers, bottles, towels, cups, utensils, syringes, gloves and apparently disposable members of society. The most obvious is that of disposable babies through abortion, closely followed by an inclining trend toward the elimination of the elderly and infirm. The recent case of a woman's assisted suicide discloses precisely the mode that society has taken on. The sanctity of life once considered sacred, is being tainted, marred and desecrated by certain individuals who deem themselves authorities on who should live or die, and when. Government has involved itself in making decisions regarding life-and-death issues.

Abortion takes on many forms; elimination of the unborn, elderly, handicapped, infirm and more. The end result is the same - DEATH! This is a moral issue and has a moral answer.

No one wants to see anyone suffer, but I believe that "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away." Whenever man depends on his own limited understanding of things too high for him to understand, trouble follows. Already suicidal victims are knocking on the door. Let the Lord decide, please.

Sonda Stepchuk

"Picnic will be missed"

The end of this summer will be different for me. An event that I look forward to every year will be no more.

I can remember back during my wonder years piling in the family station wagon and heading out to some unknown territory looking for the green arrow signs that said "Bill Ford Picnic - this way." Finally arriving, we had to park what seemed like miles away in a dusty field because there were so many cars. At that point we just followed our noses to the sweet aroma of steamed corn on the cob, cooked in the famous, enormous train engine. The crowds, the dancing, the family games were all so amazing. I remember eating what seemed like tons of kielbasa and corn on the cob.

Years later, as a Ford staffer, I was a picnic worker. At first I thought I would dread arriving at the crack of dawn helping hundreds set up the birthday bash, blowing up balloons, building the stage and hiding from Pat Talmadge (District Manager), but it was still a good time. The laughter, the music and the shouts of "No beer on the grill!" still echo in my mind when summertime rolls around. Whether it was relaxing for a brief moment sitting under a tree talking to John Dingell's wife or picking up trash, I will always remember the Bill Ford Picnic Celebration as the event of the year.

Mr. Ford, I believe I speak for thousands of your friends from the 15th District...thank you for so many good memories and I wish you many more wonderful birthdays.

David R. Keith

"Committee could have worked"

The "Wayne Charter Committee" could have been a good idea. It never hurts to hold public officials "feet to the fire", it helps keep them honest. However, they made a massive blunder when they chose Wayne's resident malcontent and local troublemaker, James Netter, to serve as their secretary. They simply lost all credibility.

A month in Vegas last week

Just Desserts

Sue Willett

It was hot, expensive and exhausting. It cost too much, the climate was unbearable and sleep was practically unknown for four days and nights. We can't wait to go back.

Against my will, my beloved spouse dragged me, kicking and screaming, to Las Vegas last week to view the latest in printing and editing computer technology. Now, don't get me wrong, I have nothing against Las Vegas, but this man has been dragging me across the country for several weeks looking at computers, software and assorted hardware with which I could launch an orbiting space station. At about the same price, I might add.

And after our last flight, accompanied by the Hell's Angels and a dozen screaming yuppie larvae, I vowed to protect what remains of my sanity at all costs. Nevertheless, off we went.

People do not sleep in Las Vegas. And, they don't want you to sleep either. There is activity all the time, around the clock, 24 hours a day. And unless you have a reliable watch, don't ever try to find out what time it is. Nobody knows and nobody cares.

We may have managed four hours sleep in the first two days, but I could be overestimating here. At 4 a.m. there are crowds on the streets, burning volcanoes erupting, caged white tigers receiving guests and traffic jams. You get the idea.

And everybody loses money. Happily. Hey, I admit it, I succumbed to the American dream of something for nothing and sat at one of those stupid slot machines thrusting my quarters into this unprepossessing device and pulling that moronic handle. As I entered my second or third hour of this mindless pursuit, it dawned on me that there are people in factories who are being paid $15 or so an hour to do this type of repetitious work. Here I sat, stuffing quarters into this machine and getting NOTHING in return. What's more, I was enjoying it. These casino owners are on to something.

During one of these middle-of-the-night forays, we encountered an elderly Japanese man playing the $100-per-wager slot machines and watched him lose several thousand dollars. That was only equalled by the four men at the $500-per-bet Blackjack table, all losing big-time.

My favorite comment, however, had to be the conclusion of my husband who, in all innocence, reported to me that after a great deal of intense and completely unscientific research, he had deduced that the amount of silicone evident in the night club floor shows was equalled only by the cellulite visible around the hotel swimming pool.

Brandied raspberry bavarian

- 1 1-pound can crushed pineapple in juice
- 2 6-ounce packages raspberry gelatin
- 3 cups boiling water
- 2 cups cold water
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1/2 cup brandy
- 1/2 pint whipping cream
- 2 tablespoons sugar

Drain pineapple reserving all juice. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Stir in reserved pineapple juice, cold water, lemon peel and brandy. Chill to consistency of unbeaten egg white. Whip cream with sugar until stiff peaks form. Fold into thickened gelatin very carefully. Add drained pineapple, carefully. Pour into bundt pan and chill overnight.

A super sizzzzzzling summer

It may be a no-no in some recipes, but taste testing almost seems to be a requirement for barbecue sauce.

Adding a dash of this and a smidgen of that may be one of the best ways to add flair to a barbecue dish. Estelle Green, owner of Posey's Kitchen in Inkster, said she always experiments as she goes along.

"A lot of times when I make my own barbecue sauce it doesn't come out the same way twice," the caterer said.

A wonderful base for a masterpiece at the grill is sauce from the grocery store, Green said.

"A person can take sauce off the shelf and add their own personal touches."

Possible additions include beer, brown sugar, lemon juice, spices, honey and molasses.

"You'd be surprised how that changes the flavor," Green said.

The other key to successful sauce starts at the grill. Meat should be partially cooked before topping is added, said Barbara Lamphear, general manager of Chef's Pride Port-A-Pit Bar-B-Q in Taylor.

When sauce is added too early, she said, it tends to "glob," blacken and lose flavor. The sauce also disguises burning.

Lamphear admits cooking over a grill can be difficult. Unless a gas grill is used, controlling the heat is nearly impossible.

"Rotate the food from one end to another," she said, to ensure even cooking.

Checking for doneness is relatively simple. With chicken, pull a leg slightly to the right. It should break away easily, popping from the socket. The meat should be white with no blood.

A similar test can be done for ribs. The meat should pull away from the bones easily.

Barbecue sauce

- 1 quart dark vinegar
- 1 teaspoon coarse black pepper
- 1 teaspoon red pepper
- 1 teaspoon red pepper flakes
- 2 tablespoons molasses
- 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
- 3 lemons, sliced thick as pencil
- 6-ounce can tomato paste
- 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1 stick real butter

Simmer vinegar, peppers, molasses, mustard and lemon slices until pulp comes out of lemons, and remove rind. Baste meat with above. Add tomato paste, Worcestershire sauce, and butter and simmer very slowly 15-20 minutes. Do not boil.

Pork barbecue

- 4-5 pound pork roast
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 1 chopped onion
- Water to cover
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1 tablespoon celery seed
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 1/4-1/2 cup molasses or dark brown sugar
- 1 1/2 cups tomato juice
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 3 tablespoons liquid from meat

Cover meat with water in a large, heavy pot on top of stove. Add vinegar and onion and simmer, covered four to five hours. Let cool, then remove meat, reserving liquid. Shred meat, removing fat and put in heavy covered pan (or crock pot). Simmer meat in above mild sauce (or your favorite barbecue sauce) approximately two hours more. (In crock pot, cook three to four hours). Serves eight to 10.

Ice cold drinks ease summer heat

As temperatures increase and appetites diminish some summer days, cravings for cool drinks can far outnumber those for food.

And at a picnic or barbecue, cold beverages are considered a must.

Sometimes the simplest drinks are the most refreshing.

Papaya and cranberry juices are top sellers at Vital Foods health food store in Livonia, according to cashier Lorraine Davis.

Freshly squeezed, cold juices always do well on hot days, she said.

Another successful, yet simple, summer drink is the Boston Cooler, a mixture of ginger ale and vanilla ice cream.

When vanilla yogurt is substituted for ice cream, the drink is only 175 calories, said Renee Moran, an employee at Yoz Frozen Yogurt in Novi.

Oahu country Club iced tea

- Tea
- Mint leaves
- Lemons
- Pineapple juice
- Sugar

Brew tea to taste. Dip mint leaves in tea five minutes. Add to each 14-ounce glass juice of half a lemon, one tablespoon pineapple juice and three teaspoons sugar. Place in cocktail shaker and shake well. Serve over ice. Add a spear of fresh pineapple.

Le the glaze

- 1 pot strong tea
- Juice of 4-6 lemons
- Rind of 1 lemon
- Rind of orange
- 1 cucumber, sliced and peeled
- Large sprig mint
- 4 ounces sugar
- 1 1/2 pints ginger ale

Use Indian or China tea, or a mixture of both, depending on taste. Carefully make two pints of tea. Use one teaspoon tea per person, heat in the pot first, and be sure water is boiling when it is poured into the heated pot. Put the lemon juice, lemon and orange rinds, cucumber slices and rind, mint and sugar in a jug. Try to cut rinds and peel all in one piece, like a snake. Pour over hot tea and stir. When cold, add the ginger ale and keep in refrigerator until ready to serve. Serve iced in glasses.

Note: This recipe can be altered according to tastes, using orange and lemon slices, cherries or more or less sugar.

Real lemonade

- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
- 1 1/2 cups very hot water
- 1 1/2 cups lemon juice
- 3/4 cups cold water

Prepare syrup: In a 1-quart jar with tight lid, shake sugar with grated lemon peel and very hot water. Be sure sugar is dissolved. Add lemon juice. Refrigerate. Pour over ice cubes in 12-ounce glasses, pour in a quarter-cup syrup. Stir in three-quarters-cup cold water.

Raspberry punch

- 1 pint raspberry sherbet
- 2 cups apple juice
- 2 cups water
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup lemon juice
- 1 10-ounce package frozen raspberries
- 1 quart ginger ale

Spoon sherbet into punch bowl. Combine apple juice, water, sugar and lemon juice; stir until sugar dissolves. Add raspberries; stir until raspberries separate. Stir into sherbet in bowl. Slowly add the ginger ale.

Party punch

- 1 can each— frozen lime, orange and lemon concentrate, 12-ounce
- 1 can Hawaiian punch, 12-ounce

Dilute concentrate juices lightly. Add Hawaiian Punch. Add ginger ale or Seven-Up. Chill. Freeze fresh mint leaves in ice cubes. Serve in tall glasses with one semicircle of pineapple. Use plastic colored straws to accent the garnish.

All-area Girls Softball Team

These stars would sparkle on any diamond

Dawn Rochowiak, a junior, has established herself as one of the most promising prep pitchers in the area and the Wolverine 'A' Conference. Rochowiak posted a 15-9 won-lost record in leading the Tigers of Belleville to a Class A district championship and to the regional finals, where they lost a 3-0 decision to Livonia Franklin. Franklin reached the state finals where the Pats fell to Jenison. Dawn had an incredible 1.97 ERA for her 174.6 innings of work. She also fanned 80 batters.

Charlunda Dewhart made her debut behind the plate for Robichaud an auspicious one. She proved to coaches in the Suburban Athletic Conference that, though a sophomore, she was the best catcher in the SAC for the 1990 season. Not only tough behind the plate, Dewhart proved valuable to Coach Lynn Cleary's Bulldogs at the plate. An over .300 batter overall, she finished with a .400-plus SAC batting average.

Jennifer Daniel broke three Romulus varsity records en route to a .451 batting average and a berth on the South Central Conference all-league team. A junior who has earned three varsity stripes, Daniel collected 51 hits (a record), posted 98 assists (another record) to erase former Romulus great Rocky Patterson's records from the books. An all-around athlete, Daniel also starred on the Eagles' outstanding volleyball team.

Alexis Watson is considered one of the finest natural hitters to wear an Inkster softball jersey. The junior infielder batted .611 for the year, piling up 22 hits in 54 trips to the plate. She also collected 42 RBI and scored 26 times. Alexis belted one homer, four triples and eight doubles during the recently concluded campaign. Also an all-conference selection, Watson is a three-year starter for Coach John Carlson's Vikings. Alexis is also an outstanding student - she boasts a 3.6 GPA.

Marcy Korgal, a clutch hitter for the Tigers of Belleville, gave a young ball club stability, according to Coach Peggy Curtis. "She was the only senior in our lineup," Curtis said, "and the other team members looked up to her." Korgal also contributed a .352 batting average in a district championship season. She opened the door to the title with her clutch hits against tough Canton and Ann Arbor Pioneer. Korgal also was named the recipient of the Best Defensive Player award on the team.

Linda Pasek, a junior, came on strong for the Tigers in the stretch. Her defensive gems against Canton in the marathon 21-inning game - the longest playoff game in Michigan High School softball history - helped the Tigers win an 8-3 battle. Linda batted .380 for the season and found her way into the Wolverine 'A' Conference all-league lineup. She scored 30 runs, had one HR and also collected six doubles.

Paula Teper, voted the Most Valuable Player for the Bulldogs of Robichaud, is only a sophomore. She batted over .400 for the season which helped convince coaches in the Suburban Athletic Conference that Teper deserved all-conference recognition. "We considered Paula as the heart of this year's team," said Lynn Cleary, head coach. "She would do anything to help this team win." Teper had a knack of waiting for the right pitch, then blasting it into the outfield for a hit.

Belleville High junior hurler Dawn Rochowiak (above) unleashes one of her pitches that helped the Tigers post an enviable 15-9 won-lost record. Coach Peggy Curtis' club went on to win a Class A district title and reached the championship round of the regional playoffs before being eliminated from the state tournament by Livonia Franklin. Tawana Green, who only played in three games in 1989, returned to the diamond this season and had an enviable year. The junior infielder batted .600, collecting 30 hits which included nine doubles and 22 RBI. A clutch hitter who rarely strikes out, Green was picked for all-Suburban Athletic Conference recognition by the coaches. A standout in basketball as well, Tawana is one of the juniors who Coach John Carlson said will form the nucleus of a winning ball club in 1991.

Michele Scarrow is also a familiar name to readers of these pages. An outstanding athlete, Michele has been the leading hitter for the Eagles of Romulus for the past three years. She holds the home run record for the Eagles. She is a legitimate all-state candidate. One of four players from Romulus picked by the coaches for South Central Conference honors, Michele has three years of varsity softball experience. She also is a member of the varsity volleyball team.

Angie Slawinski, a three-time Romulus softball letterwinner, finished the 1990 campaign hitting a hefty .381. A junior outfielder, Slawinski led the Eagles in runs scored with 44. The leadoff hitter, Slawinski helped the Eagles post their best record ever in the SCC. SCC coaches also thought highly of her talent - she was picked for all-conference recognition. "She has the potential of developing into one of the finest players in the state," said Athletic Director Fred Coleman.

Kelly Rochon is one of the hardest working players on the Belleville club. The junior outfielder had a stellar year at the plate, finishing with a .376 batting average. Although the HR ball eluded her, Rochon did hammer a pair of triples, three doubles and accounted for 21 RBI. "Kelly is a very dedicated and hard-working player," stressed Coach Peggy Curtis. "She was tough in her junior year, and will be even better a year from now."

Shannon Dudonis, the Romulus team leader, is a senior outfielder who brought the curtains down on her prep softball career hitting .438. The team's cleanup batter, Dudonis had 36 RBI for the year. Shannon had a knack of coming through for the team at the plate when the Eagles needed the 'big hit', coaches pointed out. Her absence next year is going to create a void in the lineup that will not be easily filled. She also was voted by the coaches to the all-conference team.

Keshia Wilson has already established herself as one of the finer amateur softball players in the area. The Belleville junior outfielder has been picked up by a traveling team. The Tigers' "Most Valuable Player", Wilson sported a .397 for the year. She was a unanimous all-Wolverine 'A' Conference choice, and the Tigers' MVP. The junior outfielder also earned respect for her defense. She had 45 putouts and seven assists from her centerfielder's spot.

Tequan Abney, junior first baseman for the Vikings of Inkster, batted .415 to pad her lifetime average to .555. She laced three homers, three triples and a pair of doubles to make her the leader in the RBI (27) category. An all-league cager for the 1988 and 1989 seasons, Abney is considered a power hitter, says Coach John Carlson. Although she has another year of high school ahead of her, Tequan is planning to go to college.

Last year, the veteran coach was awarded the accolade, and this year, after leading the Tigers to a Class A district championship while finishing second in the tough Wolverine 'A' Conference, Curtis is back on the dais again. Her 15-9 overall record for the 1990 season is the best for all the area softball coaches.

Local gymnast seeks national title

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

When Scott Wenzel attended Belleville High a few years ago, the high school didn't have a men's gymnastics program. Determined not to let that stop him, Wenzel took lessons in a private club.

At Eastern Michigan University, Wenzel became a member of the Huron gymnastics team. However, in his sophomore year, the Hurons, brushing aside the outcry and controversy created from student and athlete protests, dropped the sport.

That EMU administrative decision put Wenzel on the sideline again.

"I love gymnastics - I believe it is truly a great body and mind builder," Wenzel said, "so I continued to train on my own and found a club in Taylor (Mich.) that offered a good program."

Under the guidance of coach Kieron Shaw, the now 22-year-old Wenzel has matured into an excellent athlete who, after finishing third in regional competition, has been invited to compete in the U.S. National Platform Tumbling Competitions to be staged in Win-

It's an exciting opportunity. I am really looking forward to competing in the nationals. It's a challenge every athlete looks forward to.

— Scott Wenzel
Belleville gymnast

terhaven, Florida.

Wenzel said that his best event in gymnastics was the floor exercises, and switching to platform tumbling has been "challenging and interesting."

"Though relatively new, it is a sport that is coming on strong," Wenzel explained, "and probably will be included in the Olympics. It offers all of the intricacies of gymnastics - also scored on a 10 as its highest score."

But Wenzel admits that "only a few Americans know it as a sport."

"However, it is catching on, and the nationals will be covered by the sports TV channels, there will be some national exposure."

The good-looking, blond-haired, blue-eyed athlete who stands about 5-9 and weighs in at no more than 130 pounds will need a sponsor to help defray the costs for the Florida trip.

He said he will have to come up with about $900 to make the trip.

Wenzel qualified for the nationals by finishing third in the regional competitions conducted earlier this month in Midland. After seeing him perform, the Michigan Jaguars have invited Wenzel to team up with them for the team phase of the national competitions.

The nationals will have both an individual as well as team division championship

A sales & marketing major, who is in his senior year, Wenzel is looking forward to his first appearance in a national meet.

But before he gets there, Scott Wenzel needs to raise the funds to go. If you want to sponsor an up-and-coming athlete, contact Wenzel at 697-4342.

Inkster teams are ready to 'play ball'

Prospective Inkster baseball and softball players still have an opportunity to sign up for summer league play.

The Pee Wee and Midget baseball leagues started swinging last week, with 6-8 year olds taking to the diamond for the Pee Wee and 9-12 year-old playing in the Midget League.

Registration forms may be picked up at the Inkster Recreation Complex, or contact Ruth Williams, athletic supervisor, at the recreation department (728-7530), for further information.

Both leagues will require from the participant a $6 instructional league fee.

The recreation department will also stage its city-wide Bike Rodeo at 1 p.m. Friday, June 29. The competition will be staged in the parking lot of the recreation complex, located on Middlebelt Road, just north of Michigan Avenue.

3. Card of Thanks

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT. Holy Spirit. You who make me see everything, and who show me the way to reach my ideals. You who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me. You who are in all the instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank You for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with You and my loved ones in Your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank You for Your love towards me and my loved ones. Person must pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish, after third day your wish will be granted no matter how difficult it may be, then promise to publish this dialogue as soon as your favor has been granted. ## All eyes will be on the 'classics' at show

ANP Special Writer

The upcoming 1990 Eyes on the Classics car show will showcase the visions of future cars by ASC Incorporated, Cars & Concepts, Chrysler, Ford, General Motors and Pittsburgh Plate Glass in an effort to collect money for those who cannot, or who have difficulty, driving: the visually impaired.

The car show, July 8 at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House in Grosse Pointe Shores, is the major annual benefit for the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology, a non-profit organization dedicated to the preservation of vision through ophthalmic education, research and support for the visually impaired.

Admission, including a complimentary program, is $8.

One hundred fifty specialty, futuristic and classic automobiles will be displayed.

Chrysler's Voyager III concept vehicle is one of the cars that will be featured.

The Voyager III was designed to accommodate small and large groups. It has two separate units: a front half, 104 inches long, made to be a three-passenger car, and a rear unit, which cannot be operated independently. It attaches to the forward module forming a vehicle capable of carrying up to eight people.

A 1.6-liter propane-fueled four-cylinder engine powers the front part of the vehicle; a 2.2-liter fuel unit drives the rear wheels. When combined, the Voyager III is the equivalent of a 3.8-liter, eight cylinder, four-wheel drive minivan.

"The concept vehicle was designed to explore a variety of engine types, driveline configurations and fuels which may be required for future environmental and efficiency needs," said Neil Walling, the director of advance and international design of Chrysler Corporation.

A second car to be featured at the show will be the Cyclone, a concept car designed by Lincoln Mercury.

Among the unique features of this four-door specialty car are a liquid crystal glass roof which can be changed from transparent to opaque with an electric control, a new fiberoptic light source system and a rear-view television instead of the traditional exterior side-view mirrors, said Tom Land, a manager of the special events design staff at Ford.

"Side-view mirrors create aerodynamic drag and are too big so they reduce the car's fuel economy. We have designed these experimental cameras which expose views on the sides and back of the car in full color on small television monitors placed at the inside bottom of the window. Unlike side-view mirrors, they don't put a drag on the car's fuel efficiency," said Land.

"We want to get people's reactions to looking down at a color TV view of what's behind them instead of looking up at a reflection," he said.

Land also said the government is looking into requiring these television cameras be placed in all cars instead of side-view mirrors. The increased fuel efficiency created by these cameras should help the public save money, he said.

Those people anxious to see the cars before the Sunday afternoon show can pay $75 and attend a preview that morning. The Private Eyes Champagne Brunch will also be at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House. Reservations are required.

"Eyes on the Classics celebrates car design as an art form. It is the only show in the world that celebrates the art of automobile design and honors great automotive designers," said Lee Iacocca, Chrysler president and honorary chairman of the event, in a press release.

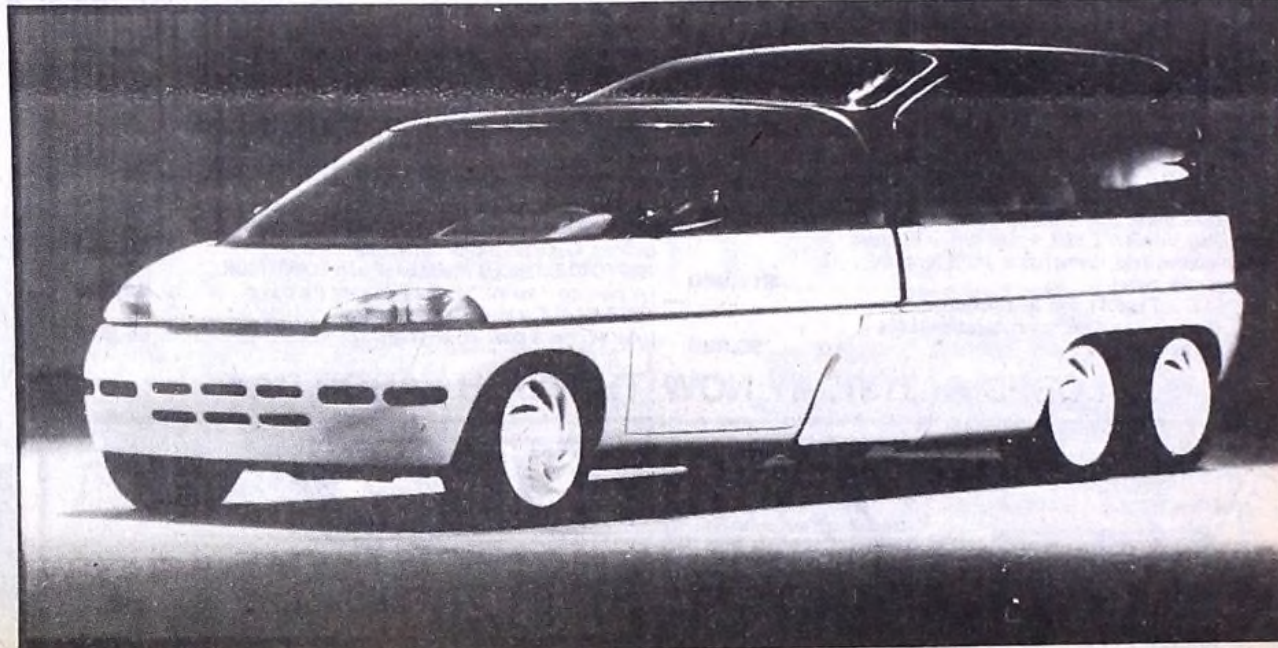

"We have fun showing off our cars, but we participate for a more important reason - to raise money for the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology. Our committee wants to raise $100,000 to help make life better for many Metro Detroiters," he said.

Chrysler Corporation, Ford Motor Company and General Motors Corporation are the three major benefactors of the Eyes on the Classics. Each sponsor has donated $10,000.

Anyone interested in receiving more information on the upcoming event can call the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology at 824-5554.
